INVESTIGATING THE CIPHERS

The Work Begun by the Committee—Testimony of Western Union Telegraph Officials—Members Become Sarcastic.

WASHINGTON Jan 27—The Potter committee to-day began investigation of the cipher telegrams

Clarence Carey attorney for the Western Union Telegraph Company testified that certain telegrams were placed in his charge when it was proposed to issue subpenas for their production before the investigation committee The purpose of placing the telegrams in his possession was to avoid if possible their delivery for public inspection It was thought that subpenas would not be issued to him owing to his position He was finally however directed by the executive committee to deliver the messages to Capt Whitney manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company at Washington Instructions with regard to picking out the dispatches were to take all of a political character the collection when first made being for the sole purpose of getting them out of the way of subpena

Floyd Grant who made selection of dispatches in New York said that he thought of the 27 000 about 300 were in cipher

The manager of the Western Union Telegraph Co at Washington in compliance with a request by Potter produced a schedule showing over 300 telegrams delivered to the Morrison committee thought Morrison returned the dispatches Other schedules were produced showing various telegrams delivered to the senate committee on privileges and elections There were delivered in two different packages When the trunk was returned to witness the schedules previously prepared were not verified the contents of the trunks being immediately shipped to New York per order of President Orton Van Horne gave verbal order in his (witness) office to collect all political telegrams from the files and forward them to New York

By Hiscock—(laughingly) No one on this side entertained an idea that the trunk was rifled by the Morrison committee Mr Chairman

Mr Morrison—It has been stated that the trunk was not in possession of the Morrison committee When it comes to that point, the laugh will be nearer home

Reed—(sarcastically) All right, go ahead we await the result with fear and trembling

Jas. O Green testified to burning the entire contents of a trunk containing telegrams as received from Washington

McMahon asked witness if he knew anything of any telegrams being kept back from those furnished in compliance with the subpenas of committees.

Witness said he knew of some telegraphic correspondence being collected prior to the issue of the subpenas, between James N Tyner and John W Foster, the latter of Indianapolis At the request of President Orton witness sent the telegrams in question either to Orton or to Capt Whitney of Washington The message referred to political matters, and the impression formed by witness was that they referred to the sale of some political offices

By McMahon—Where was Orton when he made the request?

Witness—He made the request by letter from Washington

Question—Has that letter been preserved?

Answer—No sir I burned it myself at the instance of President Orton

The Road Built by the People

[From the New York Times

If the national government should compel the Central Pacific Railroad Company to make a public statement of its past and present financial condition a great many doubts and surmises would be set at rest Railroad building is unquestionably profitable work when aided by the subscriptions of bondholders and government advances, and more than this Messrs Stanford Huntington and Crocker have been looked upon as remarkably long headed men but with all these advantages how is it that the managers of the Central company, who at the outset were poor men were able to do so much better than their rivals of the Union road who possessed a much stronger financial backing? This question was asked several years ago when the well known Oakes Ames who before embarking on the Pacific Railroad scheme was worth not less than $2 000 000 died insolvent but it is as much a mystery now as it ever was Besides building costly [illegible] after the model [illegible] in San Francisco the resources of the Central road have been diverted for the purpose of constructing new railroads along the Pacific coast and from San Diego eastward to Texas If the funds of the government had never been invested in the first enterprise or if the money invested had been paid back the latter uses of the corporate income might be nobody's business outside of the stockholders But under the circumstances [illegible] any can not expect to be free from public curiosity

Missouri is calling [illegible] [illegible] serving of that punishment but from the [illegible] of opening the door [illegible] and quite as fearful a crime the opportunity that such a law gives to every wicked woman to swear away the life of her enemy

TRANSFER OF THE INDIAN BUREAU.

(BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN)

WASHINGTON Jan 26—The report of the four members of the joint committee of the two houses of congress who favor transfer of the management of Indian affairs from the interior to the war department [illegible] completed by Representative Boone and will be submitted to the house at the first opportunity Senator Saunders and others favored authorizing the president at his discretion to turn over to the war department control of any tribe or tribes that might be in rebellion or giving trouble or such tribes as the president might think best at this time and that he was in favor of the Sioux being transferred at once with their reservation and that such transfer shall not affect the schools or farming interests &c The committee meet again before the several reports are presented not later than Feb 1st The principal features of the document are as follows

The history of our management of Indian affairs and our treatment of Indians is one of shame and mortification to all right thinking and liberal minded men. A proper solution of the Indian problem is pressing itself more strongly upon public attention every year demanding the immediate attention of congress and cannot with either safety to the Indians or honor of the government be longer deferred The failure on the part of our government to discharge its duty to the Indians is not confined to the last few years Our wrongs and treatment of them is coequal with our existence though not to the same extent in the earlier and purer days as at present During all the years past complaints have been made of violated pledges broken promises and the lack of efficient and responsible management Indeed the system of management of Indian affairs we have pursued has been unequal to the demands of our duty nor has it met the expectations of its instigators and advocates and to such extent have these wrongs been multiplied and to such extent have frauds and peculation crept into the management of Indian affairs and so glaring and shameful have these frauds become that indignant public opinion will not longer look on with indifference and unconcern but demands that these matters be looked into and the wrongs as far as possible be righted and that a policy be adopted which will conform with the dignity and character of a government and secure at the same time full and ample justice to a suffering and outraged people That these wrongs and abuses do now exist and to a fearful extent we think no one at all acquainted with the facts will attempt to deny If proof upon this point were wanting or demanded we have but to refer to the statements of all who have investigated the question and those most familiar with our present management, and to those who are to day strenuous advocates of the present system and who ask its continuance and who seem to believe in its ultimate success.

The Indian bureau is incapable of a proper conduct of Indian affairs and was compelled therefore to delegate much of its authority to other hands From the slow progress made in civilizing educating and Christianizing the Indians, to which your committee had their attention called whilst among them last fall there is no room to doubt that we should try some method of dealing with this question different from that now in vogue. The glowing accounts of the rapid stride of the Indians in the way of civilized life and their rapid march to a standard of civilization are not borne out by the facts Shameful irregularities and gross frauds have crept into every branch of the service. No one is found with the hardihood to deny the history of such frauds as visible on every page of Indian management for the last score or more of years Indeed so flagrant are the frauds and so defiant have their perpetrators become that it appears a notorious fact that a ring exists composed of contractors employes of the bureau, and wealthy and influential persons outside whose object is to swindle and defraud both the government and the Indians The opinion entertained by the undersigned is that these frauds will forever exist even with the most vigilant and scrupulous honesty which can be brought into the management of the Indian bureau because we believe the method or system of that department are inadequate to prevent fraud however honest the head of the department may be and for the reason that the system of accountability in the department is not close enough to prevent corruption

We are asked the very pertinent question whether or not the same abuses and frauds would be practiced if the management should be transferred to the war department We think not Whatever else may be said about our army officers they are as a class men of high honor and strict integrity Their training has impressed these high qualities upon them and their association requires their constant observance Every officer in the army is a check upon every other officer and such is the system of accountability in the army that it is nearly impossible for an officer to act dishonestly without being detected and punished

To go back into the history of this question it will be found that our system of Indian management has always been virtually and in effect the system now in vogue even while it was nominally under the war department prior to 1849 The system was very much the same as now We are aware the general impression is that before that time a different system prevailed and that the change in that year to the interior department was a radical change in the system but such is not the case and while it is true that superintendents and agents, being few in number made reports to the war office it is also true that neither the secretary of war nor any officer in the war department had anything to do with the appointment of these officers nor was the war office charged with the duty of supervising them or controlling in any number up to 1849

By the act of 1849 the secretary of war was given a sort of general superintendency of the agents and sub agents appointed by the president and while by that act the president was authorized to select military men to discharge the duties of Indian agents it is further true that a large majority of the agents selected were taken from civil life and as much machinery employed in the conduct of Indian affairs as now we claim that the Indian management has ever been substantially at least as at the present time Year after year large amounts of money have been expended in a vain way to civilizing these people and yet failure is written upon every page of the past history of our efforts in this direction The inauguration of the peace policy in 1868 by President Grant in the opinion of the undersigned was a virtual admission of that With civil agents this is not the case They are appointed generally as partisans and for a limited time subject at any time to removal paid small salaries and can only hope to hold the position for a few years at most and hence have not the same inducements to act honestly and fairly that an army officer has

We do not undertake to say that the war department is so perfect in management that abuses do not occur in its management, also but we think it compares favorably with any other department and that fewer instances of dishonest practices have been laid to its charge than to almost any other branch of public service

Next to the question of absolute justice to Indians, comes that of the comparative cost of the two systems, and we are decidedly of the opinion that a large amount of money can and will be saved if the transfer is made If it be true that army officers can perform the duties of Indian agents as faithfully diligently and honestly as civil agents have and are doing, and if the war department can purchase as cheaply as the Indian bureau and if the means of transportation in the war department are much superior and if systems of inspection are equal and if army officers are not so apt to become victims of temptation and if we can secure more faithful and honest administration through army officers and thereby avoid some if not all Indian wars we say if these or any number of these propositions be true then who will say that we shall not save millions of dollars in our Indian management if this transfer is made and at the same time it will secure justice to the Indian the lack of which has caused so much trouble

The report concludes

We believe that the interest of the government and the good of the Indian will be best promoted by transferring the management of Indian affairs to the war department leaving it discretionary with the secretary of war to appoint civil agents to those agencies which in his judgment the interest of all concerned will be best secured by such agent and the officers of the army where interests of the service require

American 'Imported' Goods

[From the New York Times.]

Every one knows that we supply Great Britain with large amounts of cheese which when sold is called Cheddar and that a certain quantity of this article finds its way back across the Atlantic and commands in fancy grocery shops an enhanced price in consequence of the foreign flavor it has presumably acquired during its sojourn abroad So too the bacon from Cincinnati and Chicago comes back to us after a voyage to the old world labeled English, often needing only a stay of a few weeks to become thoroughly naturalized These are such patent deceits that no one thinks of objecting to them, but one of a more hidden character has lately come to light whose heinousness is increased because it aims to hoodwink a select and discriminating class of consumers Caviar is just as little appreciated by the multitude [illegible] is not offered for sale on every store counter Those however whose tastes are educated up to the point get their favorite condiment at some well stocked German store or perhaps direct from some importer It is usually put up in tin cans with a gorgeous label stamped with the imperial double eagle of Russia and although a brief line sometimes states that the work was done at Hamburg the can and its adornment impress the ordinary mind with ideas at least as far reaching as Moscow Recently some statistician has hinted that we were among our many exports sending caviar to Europe The announcement at first seemed preposterous but among the rude shocks to human feeling occasioned by the sinking of the steamer Pomerania was that caused to some by discovering from her freight list that she had on board a large quantity of caviar in barrels sent by shippers in New York to the canners in Hamburg It thus turns out that the foreign luxury in which we have indulged at the expense of customs duties and transportation charges is nothing more than an American article of food made no doubt out of the roe of good though cheap American fish

A Criticism on our Oregon Poet

[From the International Review ]

It is possible to join Joaquin Miller's English admirers in praising his poems without stint and it is easy with most of his American critics, to point out his faults but it is difficult to characterize him with entire fairness His last volume is more free from mere faults of grammar than its predecessors but he calls monks gents and he makes the peasants of Titian's land fall the tall forest He still repeats himself in words figures fancies and ideas In this volume lonesome and sea snows are favorite epithets rain as well as snow is highborn in two poems, at least the gondolier uses his paddle as a lifted spear the stars fresco the heavens and the water rat is heard building All that was worth saying in the half dozen or more addresses to the Lion of St Mark's might better have been put into a single poem Some figures some expressions some lines of thought are crude and some in bad taste Some of the calls for sympathy are unintelligible if not unmanly and the attempt at humor (in Il Capuchin') is not very successful On the other hand Mr Miller has the rare gift of passion Even where he offends the taste he fires the fancy and some of his lines haunt the reader's memory If he would have the courage to submit himself to severe intellectual discipline and to publish nothing but his best he might more than fulfill the promise he has given but perhaps it is too late

Blaine in the Senate

[Mary Clemmer in the Independent ]

Heretofore the man graduated from the house to the senate has felt it to be necessary to use additional hair oil and to lengthen noticeably his wristbands and to add equal proportions of dignity and stupidity to his demeanor Mr Blaine has not touched his toilet but changed his deportment His olden war whoop died in the house His forefinger is less pointed and wavy than it used to be His voice more obstreperous defies subjective modulation and with excitement involuntarily rises to a clarion blast Like the minor key the rising inflection is more a matter of temperament than of training Above a core of turbulence Mr Blaine in the senate seeks to seem a man of quietude and repose This is natural Each senator thinks it indispensable to his senatorial dignity to cultivate a monumental manner The difference in this case is that in the house Mr Blaine was himself and in the senate save when he forgets he is not himself Thus the universal verdict of men is that Blaine's speech is not like him Says one an impartial judge and a friend of the speaker It is too studied too accurate too concise to be like him As a whole, it lacks his usual vehemence of expression and the torrents of invective in which he is accustomed to indulge

Grain Product of Europe

[From the New York Times ]

The average grain product of Europe is reported at 5 000 000 000 bushels, of which Russia raises one third France and Germany 420 000 000 bushels each and Austria 500 000 000 The United States produces 1 600 000 000 bushels (about the quantity that Russia does) which in proportion to our population is much larger production than any other country can boast of Counting our inhabitants at 40 000 000 we raise forty bushels per head and Europe's inhabitants at 300 000 000 she raises but sixteen bushels per head Russia has twenty six and Great Britain only four bushels per head The amount of grain consumed being generally fifteen bushels per head we produce nearly three times as much as we want Russia almost twice what she needs and Great Britain not more than one fourth of her requirement Thus it will be seen that the production far exceeds the consumption but the excess is absorbed by breweries and distilleries at home and abroad which more than any other cause keep up the price of breadstuffs

Bill Chandler Again.

[From the Recent Stalwart Manifesto ]

The Republican doughface seemed to go out of existence when the rebel guns were fired at Sumter and it was hoped that the species was extinct but in 1877 it revived and now often lifts its head to distract counsel and paralyze action He is to be found in the editorial room libeling radicals and sneering at sacred sentiment at conventions advocating the nomination of flunkeys in [illegible] courting rebel gentry [illegible] the cabinet conciliating confederates with petty patronage and even crouching and canting in the White House Although such doughfaces exist nominally within the party further Republican success depends upon not heeding their cowardice nor being diverted nor hindered by their treacheries They did not though they tried protect nor extend slavery defeat emancipation nor manhood suffrage and they will not prevent a Republican victory in 1880, but will when it is achieved, shout the loudest and again attempt to turn its fruits into ashes

The Throne of English Literature

[From the Cornhill Magazine

Nor can I help thinking I confess in spite of Macaulay and De Quincey that literature if not literary men was held in higher esteem in the last century than it is in the present one Has there been any one in this century who has occupied the same position in English society as first Pope and afterward Dr Johnson occupied in the society of that It was not merely Pope the poet or Johnson the moralist to whom the honor was paid it was paid to each as the acknowledged chief and representative of English literature Whether what some people call mere literature and others pure literature is considered worthy of any such homage at the present [illegible] is at least a very doubtful point

TUESDAY MORNING JAN 28 1879

THE GRANT MOVEMENT.

It will be remembered that two or three months ago there were statements that Gen Grant was getting weary of his long stay in foreign lands, and would soon return home In fact it was so genuine a case of homesickness that he announced in private letters to some of his friends that he intended to start home in a few weeks. Under the impression that a bigger demonstration in his behalf could be got up at Philadelphia than at any other place he was to land at that city, and great preparations began to be talked of for his reception. But in a short time the programme was changed; he telegraphed home for one of his sons to accompany him and decided on a journey through Asia and return across the Pacific. Wise men at the east, political magi who are watching the star of the next presidential election, say that the change of intention was brought about by the managers of the "Grant movement," who, on hearing that he was about to return home, cabled him to wait till they could communicate with him by letter. After consultation they wrote him it would never do to come back now, but that it was absolutely necessary he should remain abroad the allotted time. They foresaw that it would be an irreparable blunder should he return a year and a half before the opening of the presidential contest. His old friend Borie was got off to meet him, and the programme was arranged for him to turn his steps toward the orient, land at San Francisco, make a tour of our Pacific states, and return with a triumphal march across the continent just in time to carry by storm the nominating convention. This is the story now in circulation in eastern political circles, and from movements which have been made it seems not wanting in plausibility. There can be no doubt that the Grant movement is a real force, working actively on a definite plan, but there is much reason to doubt whether Grant will ever again be president of the United States. There is a sentiment against a third term which will assert itself again as it did in 1876. And more than that, there is a remembrance of the men whom Grant had about him before, and a repugnance to placing him in position where he would have opportunity to advance them again.

INDEPENDENT CRITICISM.

Several "organs" are alleging malevolence and injustice on the part of THE OREGONIAN because of its remarks on Mr. Grover's administration of state affairs and its comments on his recent speech in the senate on the report of the investigating committee. It will not be denied, we presume, that the relations of every public man with public affairs are a proper subject of inquiry and criticism. It is one of the functions of an independent newspaper to deal with public men without regard to their political connections. There are "organs" enough whose business it is to excuse and defend all that may be done by the members of their party, and to condemn everything that may be done by their opponents. But this journal takes another course. It criticised Senator Mitchell's course on important public questions and opposed his reelection notwithstanding he is a Republican; and its comments on Senator Grover have nothing to do with the fact that he is a Democrat. The interests of every community require a newspaper occupying this position; but to the strictly partisan organ it always appears that when such criticism falls upon members of its party the independent journal is actuated by motives of political hostility or personal malevolence. When the criticism is changed, and directed against men and measures of the other party, then the organs of that party in their turn resent it. Thus to the organs on both sides an independent newspaper is an incomprehensible thing. Just now those journals which consider it their bounden duty to defend Mr. Grover, and which would defend him in everything and under all circumstances, are filled with complaints that THE OREGONIAN'S comments on his late administration and on his speech in the senate are malicious and unfair. But in no particular have they undertaken to show where there has been any misrepresentation. We have adhered closely to the record, have asserted nothing except what appears to be established by the strongest testimony, and have challenged and still challenge proof to the contrary. Should such proof be furnished, we shall willingly give it fullest publicity, withdraw our own statements and make full amends for unintentional error. If the committee have made in any particular a false report, THE OREGONIAN stands ready, when that fact shall have been shown, to censure it as it may deserve. But the organs will find that mere denunciations of the committee, without proof of errors on its part, will not avail.

THE CUSTER DISASTER.

The Reno inquiry, which has been in progress a considerable time, furnishes a good many facts which seem to fix the whole responsibility on the brave and unfortunate Custer himself for that unequaled disaster. Admiration of Custer's gallantry and sympathy for his misfortune do not blind the public to the fact that the disaster was a result of his own precipitancy and indiscretion. In the St. Paul Pioneer-Press we find what appears to be an impartial review of the whole affair, which goes to show first that Reno is not censurable, and secondly, that the catastrophe which closed Custer's gallant career was a result of his neglect of the orders of his superior officer. When Custer moved with his command from the camp of Gen. Terry at the mouth of the Rosebud it was in pursuance of a plan of operations which had been submitted by Terry to Custer and Gibbon and fully approved by them. "It was that Gen. Custer with his whole regiment," as Gen. Terry said in a communication to Gen. Sheridan, "should move up the Rosebud till he should meet a trail which Reno had discovered a few days before; but that he should not follow it direct to the Little Big Horn, but send scouts over it and keep his main force further south, so as to prevent the Indians stepping in between him and the mountains. He was also to examine the headwaters of Tollock's creek as he passed it, and send me word what he found there." It was calculated that General Gibbon, coming from the west, would reach the mouth of the Little Big Horn on the 26th June, and that Custer, moving at the rate of thirty miles a day, would reach a position where he could communicate with Gibbon and co-operate with him in attacking any Indians found on the stream. Gen. Terry was to ascend the Yellowstone and the Big Horn with his command and reach the Little Big Horn at the same time with Gibbon. The Indians were thus to be cut off from retreat westward and attacked by the combined forces in their encampment on Little Big Horn, where they had nerved themselves for a stand. Terry and Gibbon carried out to the letter their part of the concerted plan. But Custer, constitutionally insensible to fear, and considering himself partially in disgrace on account of treatment he had received at Washington, did not follow his instructions or the route laid down for him. As soon as he struck the trail, instead of passing to the south of it as ordered and agreed upon, he followed it by a rapid march till he came upon the Indians on Little Big Horn, on the 25th June. Here without waiting for the co-operation of the other columns he threw his command upon a force of three thousand Indians The division led by himself, consisting of five companies, was cut off to a man Reno attacked at the point directed by Custer, but finding the force before him many times greater than his own, he fell back with loss to the position from which he and his three companies were rescued next day by the arrival of Terry's troops. It is undoubted that Custer expected to win by the headlong dash of which he was so fond, but had he succeeded the result would have been only the dispersion and flight of the Indians instead of their capture or annihilation, as had been contemplated by the plan which had been adopted. The arrival of the other troops on the ground next day after the catastrophe proves how well the plan had been laid which Custer had frustrated by his eager and hasty onset. He sacrificed himself and his three hundred followers to his rash ambition to carry off the honors of the campaign.

The petition against Gen. Howard, which has been circulated in Eastern Oregon and Idaho, (but not signed), says: "With the acknowledged ability of the present department commander in view, his conduct during the late Piute and Bannock war can be accounted for on no other hypothesis than that he felt during all his movements that he was pursuing for punishment a people with whom he sympathized." This is an absurdly scandalous assertion. It is equivalent to saying in plain words that Gen. Howard was trifling with the campaign, that he did not want to overtake the marauding savages, but was quite willing to let them have opportunity to kill and plunder at their leisure. Yet it is known to everybody who knows anything about the matter that he was making superhuman exertions to overtake the Indians, and lost no chance to strike them. This paper talks about his having followed them by "easy marches." No more laborious and fatiguing march has been made in all our Indian wars than Howard's pursuit of these bands As for his "sympathy" for the Indians, it is a true man's just sympathy with the cause of humanity and nothing more; and no person of sense has ever supposed that it would hold back Gen. Howard when there are hostile bands to be dealt with. He believes in gunpowder, too, and his career proves that he will use it with more effect than these Drawcansir heroes who can annihilate whole tribes of Indians when there is no war on hand.

News still comes now and then from Gramercy Park. A recent deliverance is to the effect that Tilden was not busier wire-pulling for his own election during the hottest period of the campaign of 1876 than he is now: that he is devoting his entire time to setting up the pins for his own nomination in 1880, and is calmly confident of his own success. Very likely Tilden's enemies within his party who are working so busily to overthrow him are not yet rid of him. The old man still has resources in skill and cunning, and is able, after all his bad ventures, to open another bar'l yet.

Secretary Sherman has just published a volume of his speeches delivered during the last dozen years on financial questions. He is working hard to keep himself before the country as the author and finisher of resumption. His special friends persuade him that they see the presidency rising upon the horizon of their hopes.

The Democrats of the Indiana legislature have before them a bill to gerrymander the state for legislative purposes, which provides for a Democratic majority in the house of twenty-four, and in the senate of twelve, and for nine Democrats to four Republicans in congress.

The Springfield Republican says Blaine is already getting praise for the superb organization with which he is working up his presidential canvass for 1880, as he did that for 1876.

OUR DESPOTIC RULERS.

In an article on the contracts which eastern merchants and western shippers have been forced to make with the Union and Central Pacific railroads, the San Francisco Chronicle says:

By the terms of the contract the merchants are required to covenant and agree that they will ship, or cause to be shipped, by way of the Union Pacific railroad, and such other connecting railroads as may be designated from time to time by the general freight agent of the Union Pacific, all goods, wares and merchandise purchased by, for, and shipped by or consigned to a merchant from any point in the United States or Canada east of the meridian of Omaha, for sale or use on the Pacific coast during a specified time. The contracts declare that the object and purpose of the agreement is to secure for and give to the Union Pacific (and Central Pacific) the transportation of not only that ~~class and portion of freight of the~~ merchant which has hitherto been shipped by rail, but also that which the merchant has been accustomed to ship by sea. The merchant who signs the document agrees that no one else shall ship goods in his name or use his shipping marks. He is required to give the railroad company the right to open and examine the packages shipped by him, and he is required to sign a bond releasing the railroad companies from all liability for damage to goods in transitu over their line. To secure the binding force of this contract upon the merchants, the bills of lading and shipping receipts are filled up at double the agreed rate of freight, and this double rate is collected before the delivery of the goods at their destination on the Pacific coast, unless the owner or his agent can satisfy the railroad company that he has complied with his agreement in every respect, when he is permitted to take his goods on payment of the old rates charged last year. The merchant is bound to give sixty days' notice if he wants to break the contract, and he cannot send any goods to the Pacific coast by any other route if there is a possibility of their arrival there before the expiration of the sixty days.

On reading the above one may well ask, are we in Russia, Austria or China? Is it possible that such an edict can be enforced in the United States? These questions are easily answered. In Russia, Austria or China, despotic edicts are issued by the Imperial government, here they are put forth by Jay Gould and Leland Stanford, managers of the Union and Central Pacific railroads, which were built with the proceeds of bonds voted by congress and issued by the treasury department, and upon which the annual interest paid by the United States treasury in each year amounts to more than the said railroads were worth up to the time they began to sell the guaranteed and first-mortgaged bonds on the two lines. They are at this time dividing eight per cent per annum on a fictitious watered capital of more than $100,000,000, which annual interest rightfully belongs to the United States and the taxpaying citizens thereof. Not content with plundering the treasury by refusing to pay interest on the treasury bonds, as it becomes due, they now seek to drive American clipper ships from a carrying trade which has been their only support for a number of years. By enhancing the rate of freight on wheat cargoes to Europe they hope to control the produce that is shipped from California to the east, and which now goes by ship to New York. By paying the Pacific Mail Steamship Company a subsidy of $50,000 per month the railroad companies control the freight which has hitherto been carried by steamer and as these contracts now stand they are as completely masters of the situation as if the whole United States belonged to them

Atlanta, Georgia, which had a population of only 5,000 at the close of the war, has now over 40,000, and as handsome and substantial buildings as any city of its size in the country Everybody seems to be full of business, and they go about it with a rush and a push very like the Yankees. It is the center of five important railroads, mammoth cotton factories and machine shops, and several dry goods and grocery houses doing a business of a million dollars each per annum.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Times reports that there is no hope of the passage, at this session, of the bill providing for the counting of the electoral vote, on account of irreconcilable differences of opinions. Hopes are entertained that the next congress will pass some measure to accomplish the object at its first session.

The Daily Oregonian.

TUESDAY MORNING, JAN. 28, 1879.

CITY.

THE LATE JOSEPH CARMAN.—We are informed that Joseph Carman, the unfortunate man who was burned to death Sunday morning in his own house in East Portland, was not discharged from the O & C. R. R., as has been stated. He acted as fireman for a long time, and a few days ago was transferred to the car shop, at his own request. Carman was to have commenced work at the car shop yesterday morning. He went home much intoxicated, and starting a fire in the kitchen stove, made some coffee. After drinking a cup or two he laid down on the bed with his clothes on. By some means the house caught fire, and it is supposed Carman, having fallen into a drunken sleep, was suffocated before the flames reached him. The fire had been burning some time before it was discovered. The whole interior was a mass of flames when the discovery was made. Mr. George Parrish who lives only about 100 yards away was the first person who discovered the building to be in flames. He and his wife hastened to the scene, but found the flames bursting from the doors and windows. It was too late to render any assistance, as the unfortunate man had miserably perished. The charred remains could not be taken from the burning ruins for some time.

FOR THE DEFENDANT.—Suit was instituted a few days ago by Prof. J. H. Brenner, the musician, against Mr. John Maguire, manager of the New Market Theater, for the sum of $200. The plaintiff alleged that Maguire had entered into a contract with him for the period of six months to furnish music at New Market Theater; that Maguire had employed other musicians and discharged the plaintiff, that plaintiff had offered to fulfill his part of the contract—to play each night—but defendant had refused to comply with the conditions of the contract. As there had been no failure or want of willingness to furnish music, plaintiff brought an action for the recovery of the sum of $200 claimed to be due him on the contract. Manager Maguire denied that he had ever entered into a contract for six months or for any other definite period with the plaintiff; that as long as he was satisfied with Brenner the contract existed, but no longer; that owing to some disagreement he had discharged Prof. Brenner and employed Prof. Bray. Yesterday the case was tried before Justice Bybee. A jury was demanded, and after hearing all the testimony in the case, a verdict was returned in favor of the defendant and the case dismissed.

PHILOMATHEAN LECTURES.—It is hoped that these lectures will be liberally patronized, as the object is a worthy one, it being the desire of the members of the society to occupy the lecture field in the future. The acknowledged ability of the lecturers at present engaged does the society credit and speaks well for the future. If they receive sufficient patronage to justify it, advantage will be taken of the visits to San Francisco of lecturers from the eastern states who will be induced to come to Portland, while on the other hand, if the people do not tender the necessary support, such steps cannot be taken. We hope that our citizen will not allow this opportunity of establishing a permanent lecture agency to fail. On Friday evening of this week, the first of the series will be delivered in Masonic hall by Judge J. H. Reed. Subject, "A Glimpse at England about A. D. 1700."

DR. LINDSLEY'S LECTURE.—A Salem paper says: "Rev. A. L. Lindsley will deliver a lecture at the Presbyterian church Wednesday evening, the 29th inst. The subject of the lecture will be "Recent Discussions of the Theory of Evolution." This lecture has been delivered only twice, and was received each time by those who had the pleasure of hearing it with many expressions of satisfaction, especially because it makes things so plain. The lecture explains the theory in a popular manner, so as to be easily understood, and is enlivened by quotations from its friends and opponents, and treats all parties to the discussion with entire candor and fairness. No theological writers are quoted, and the whole discussion turns upon the natural and scientific principles involved. It is not too much to say that the lecture condenses the information on the subject which the great majority of people desire to hear."

INSANE PATIENT.—Says the Telegram: Geo. A. Connor, of whom mention was made a few days ago, was examined yesterday by Drs. Saylor and Raffety and committed to the insane asylum. What the nature of his malady is they were unable to determine at this stage of the case, and is, to say the least, rather perplexing. He has neither feeling nor power, and acts like one mesmerized, and if placed in any position maintains it with statue-like indifference. Since his incarceration (five days) he has neither ate nor drank any nourishment, and don't seem to desire any. All he does is to smoke, and if shown tobacco will fill his pipe and light it and retire to a corner, and there pass his time smoking and gazing into space. Judge Rice made out a commitment and he was taken to the asylum yesterday afternoon.

A BASE, IGNOBLE SLAVE.—Yesterday morning when the roll was called in the city jail only one of the inmates was ready to go to work on the streets. And he was a Chinaman. All the white persons in the jail nobly refused to work, prefering confinement for twenty-four hours in the dark cell without fire, blanket or food. Thus do our proud citizens nobly maintain the dignity of labor, while the degraded Chinaman, as his nature is, surrenders to a base servitude. The guard went up the street with his lone Chinaman, who was going to scrape crosswalks. But what could be expected of a Chinaman? He'll work, of course. Not so the proud American citizen, who would freeze and starve rather than work an hour. We shall be ruined yet by Chinese cheap labor.

AN EFFICIENT OFFICER.—Columbia engine company, No. 3, will be twenty years old in June next. The only man of its thirty charter members who is now an active member of the company is Mr. Thomas Neally. He was its first secretary and was successively re-elected each year until he left the city in 1864. He afterward returned to the city, and in 1869 was again elected to that office and has since performed its duties in a most efficient manner. "Tom" will again be a candidate at an election to be held on the 6th of next month, and as the "Owls" appreciate his faithful services he will doubtless be unanimously re-elected.

THE UNION REVIVAL MEETING.—Last night the Congregational church was well filled, and the services were intensely interesting. The service of song, led by Mr. Wadhams, backed by a large chorus, was a powerful aid to the presentation of the truth, and Mrs. Cruzan's singing of the "Ninety and Nine" was very enjoyable. "Prayer" was the subject of an able sermon by Mr. Coats. To-night Mr. Cruzan will preach from the text, "Will a Man Rob God?" The chorus choir will be increased in number, and Mrs. Wilkinson and Mrs. Cruzan will sing a duet entitled "Clinging to Jesus." All are invited.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.—By passengers who came down on the afternoon train we learn that an old lady named Settemeir, who resides at Woodburn station, committed suicide yesterday at that place. She obtained possession of a shotgun and discharged the contents into her head, producing instant death. No further particulars could be obtained. Mrs. Settlemeir has been partially insane for some time, and had to be watched almost continually to prevent her doing herself an injury. She leaves several children to mourn her sudden and tragic death.

LODGE INSTITUTED.—Mr. H. G. Oliver, D. S. M. W., instituted Colombia Lodge No. 10, A. O. U. W., at Seattle, Jan 25th, with the following officers: Oliver C. Shorey, P. M. W.; Wm. Meydenbauer, M. W.; M. C. Latta, G. F., L. C. Harmon, O; Nelson Chilberg, G; Andrew Chilberg, Recorder, Michael Wunder, Financier; Michael Glare, Receiver; Fred. Jensen, I. W.; J. W. Hurley, O. W., O. G. Root, M. S. Ex. Physician.

ENGINE HOUSING.—The Seattle firemen will house their new engine on Thursday of this week, and we are informed that some members of the fraternity in this city will attend. Those desiring to go will be furnished transportation at half price.

FROM ASTORIA.—The following dispatch was received yesterday from Trenchard & Upshur: "Bark Lutterworth arrived down at noon yesterday. Elder arrived down at 1:30 and crossed out 3 P. M. yesterday. Br. bark Strathearn left for sea yesterday forenoon and anchored at Fort Stevens. Str Oregon is coming in over the bar, and will arrive here at 9:30 A. M., light east wind; weather cloudy.

PRISONER RECAPTURED.—Yesterday the deputy sheriff of Coos county got on board the north-bound train at Drain's station, having in custody a prisoner who had effected an escape from the penitentiary some time ago. We are unable to ascertain the name of the prisoner. He was recaptured some days since in Coos county.

AMUSEMENTS.

The celebrated actress Miss Annie Adams and Little Maud," the child wonder, arrived last evening on the Oregon, and will under engagement to Manager Maguire, appear on the commencement of the new season.

MR. WARD'S BENEFIT.—The performance to be given to-morrow evening at New Market theater gives promise of being an affair of much more than ordinary interest. The sensational drama of "Through by Daylight" and a series of sketches will be produced. A crowded house may be expected.

DRAMATIC.—Last evening "Solon Shingle" was presented at New Market theater. Mr. C. B. Plummer appeared in the leading character and not only added greatly to his well deserved reputation as a delineator of comic and eccentric character, but won frequent and hearty plaudits. Throughout the entertainment was quite enjoyable and well received. The following is the cast: "Solon," Mr Plummer; "Robert Howard," J S Lindsay; "Hugh Winslow," R C. White; "Charles Otis," A. Clenthnerland; "John Elisby," Mr. Allen; "Tripper," Mr Wade; "Timid," J. B Robinson; "Judge," Walter M. Leman; "Sheriff," E. Bealey; "Thompson," Mr Deaves; "Foreman of the Jury," F. Deaves; "Grace Otis," Miss L. Edgar; "Mrs. Otis," Miss Allen. The evening's performance concluded with the very ludicrous two-act farce, "Irish Mesmerism." The same bill will be repeated this evening.

JENSEN TO THE FRONT.

In yesterday's issue of THE OREGONIAN mention was made of the fact that a letter had been received at this office written in the Danish language. In response to the expressed desire that some countryman of the "melancholy Dane" would call and translate the letter, a young gentleman came to this office yesterday and translated the contents. And now we are asked to say:

"If Peter Jensen, of Herrilslev Lolland, will call at THE OREGONIAN office he will hear something that may be to his advantage."

PERSONAL.

Mr. Oscar Kilbourn, United States ganger, returned last evening from an official visit to Jacksonville.

THE GRANT MOVEMENT.

Pascal said that if Cleopatra's nose had been a trifle shorter the whole history of the world might have been changed. On such slight causes do important things depend. Just now the "Grant movement" is mystifying the public. Why is he going to China? Why is he—in short, were this the "Grand movement" instead of the Grant, the change of the one letter would be sufficient to inform the public that it alluded to the grand movement in Blankets, Muslins and Dress Goods at the I. X. L. Auction Co., 172 First street. The movement after their $2 unbleached Moscow blankets is simply wonderful. The busiest house in town.

IN A STATE OF SIEGE.—The public have found where to get furniture, elegant, substantial and cheap, and are flocking to Edwards & Birmingham's, where everything to make a home comfortable can be found. Come one come all!! Corner Second and Yamhill streets, up stairs.

Never go to a second class 'gallery for a photograph, you will have to pay the same price that Buchtel charges for first class work.

The people appreciate low prices and good work by patronizing liberally, Abell the photographer, whose display speaks for itself. Don't forget the place.

Dr H. F. Adams, the eye and ear and chronic disease physician, is still at the St. Charles Hotel, Portland.

Ladies' Woolen Stockings, 25 cents a pair, at Mrs. Charles Tichnor's, corner First and Yamhill streets, Portland.

For a nice fitting and stylish suit, ladies be sure to call at the popular I X L, 101 Third st., near Morrison.

Ladies who want stylish ready made suits, call at Mrs. Pilger's, the leading dress maker of Portland. Alder street, near First.

For Dyspepsia, Damiana Bitters. Fleckenstein & Mayer are sole agents.

INTERESTING TO LADIES.—Dickey's "Creme de Lis" has now been before the public for ten years during which time this beautiful preparation has met with the highest approval at the hands of the fair sex—being as all who have used it will verify, the only perfect preparation of its kind. Every ingredient entering the composition of Dickey's 'Creme de Lis' is subjected to the most rigid test of modern Chemistry, to insure the uniformity and purity of its combination, and neither time not expense have been spared to make it perfect—it being well known the public will appreciate and support, a truly meritorious article. Several new beautifiers under various names have lately started into existence, but Dickey's "Creme de Lis" has no competition in merit. Sold by all druggists.

A BREAK FOR FREEDOM.

On Sunday, Oregon City had a little episode in the shape of a jail delivery, which for an hour or two served to vary the dullness usually experienced in that moral town on the Sabbath day. Two prisoners were in the prison awaiting trial, one named Bennett, on a charge of burglary alleged to have been committed at Canby a short time ago, and the other, whose name we did not learn, for an assault with a lethal weapon, upon a Chinaman. Sunday about one o'clock a lad was passing the jail and saw the prisoners getting out through the window, they having sawed off the bars composing the grate with saws which they had improvised from two case knives which they had got into their possession in some way. The lad ran home, near by, and told his father, and the alarm was given immediately. Before the escapes had travelled 200 yards from the jail several men were in pursuit. Harley Stevens, the ticket agent of the O. & C. R. R. Co., happened to have his pistol handy and as the prisoners ran he fired three shots after them. The balls cut the clothing of each but did no further damage. The one awaiting trial for assault feeling that the pursuit was too close and the bullets too swiftly for safety, surrendered, but Bennett kept running and being fleet of foot succeeded in dodging into an old shed in the south end of town, where he remained hid for a little while, but was discovered and the pair conducted back to prison, when it was found that Bonnett's coat had a bullet hole through the skirt and the other fellow's a like aperture through the sleeve, showing that Stevens' shooting meant business.

The company has made arrangements to commence work on the mine immediately and before spring fairly opens will take out a large quantity of ore. Persons desiring information in regard to the mine or having business to transact with the company will please call on William M. Evans, attorney at law, at the branch office of the company, in Church's building, corner First and Morrison streets, Portland, Oregon. The certificate of the assay made of the ore by Messrs. ### THE MACOUPIN COUNTY JOB.

Speaking of the arrest of S. W. Hall at Olympia, and his return to Illinois on the charge that his real name is Holliday, and that he was connected with the great swindle some years ago in Macoupin county, the Chicago Times says that if he proves to be the right man his arrest will lead to a legal investigation of that prodigious piece of scandalism. It was a gigantic court house job, in which the legislature was an accessory. The Times says: The steal was made possible by an act of the legislature authorizing an unlimited issue of county bonds for the purpose of constructing a court house in Macoupin. The authority asked by the county ring was for the issue of $200,000, but in the last hours of the session, when the bill passed, the limit was omitted, and bonds to the amount of $1,600,000 were issued. The county officers who managed the business are said to have carpeted most of the social-evil shops in Chicago with these bonds, and the county for years afterward contested payment of the interest upon them in the courts. The bondholders won at all points, however, and under the burden of taxation which threatened to impoverish the people, the value of property in Macoupin fell 50 to 75 per cent. If the person under arrest should prove to be the right man, be permitted to become a witness for the state, and expose the meaner rascals in the legislature who sold their votes for this monstrous robbery, he may do the state a greater service than he could by stone-cutting in the penitentiary for the remainder of his life.

When Holliday fled from Macoupin county, in the spring of 1870, he took with him to New York city the finest and most expensive private library in the west. He sold the books for little or nothing, and disappeared from New York city. A party of gentlemen went from Macoupin to Niagara Falls and examined the grave of a man who had committed suicide and was thought to have been Holliday, but it was found to be a "put-up job" by Holliday to throw the detectives off his track. No further trace of the missing man could be found. Finally some letters from Washington Territory put the authorities on the track of Hall, who, if he proves to be Holliday, was the master spirit in the great court house scheme. He was court house commissioner, and the promised developments will throw a calcium light on the transaction. A number of the bonds have been duplicated, and nearly $300,000 of the old bonds are irregular and have been refused by the funding committee. He is brought back at the instigation of the board of supervisors for the purpose of settling how much of the Macoupin debt is legitimate. Competent judges and architects who have made estimates say that the court-house ought not to have cost over $750,000, whereas bonds were issued to the amount of $1,600,000. Holliday was a man well connected and of the most brilliant attainments, and at one time was the leading Democratic politician in his congressional district.

TRUE AS STEEL! AGAIN VICTORIOUS!—Lodi, Cal., Jan. 10, 1879. HALL'S SAFE AND LOCK CO., San Francisco, Cal. GENTS:—One night last week (December 30, 1878) some cracksmen broke into my store for the purpose of robbing my Hall's Patent Fire and Burglar Proof Safe, purchased of you some time since. They were, however, apparently satisfied to give it up as a bad job! After tampering with the lock, which they found impossible to pick, their efforts were directed against the burglar-proof box compartment, which they doubtless knew contained money and valuables. A piece of iron about as large as my hand was first cut out from one side of the safe; drills were then sent in against the burglar box, evidently to test the question whether or not the box could be drilled and powder injected. Their drills failed to make any impression whatever upon the steel box, and these worthies were forced to abandon their undertaking. From the artistic manner in which these rascals attacked my safe, I am satisfied that they were professional cracksmen who understand their business. Your Safe proved itself to be what you claim for it, viz: Fire and Burglar Proof. I cordially commend your manufacture of Safes to public favor. Yours, very truly, C. O. IVORY.

THAT BOY.

Dramatis personæ—A young American in roundabout and leggins, perched upon the fence devouring a huge piece of mince pie, and a maiden of five summers, in pantalettes, looking very wistfully at the gormand on the fence. Young America—"I say, sis, does your mar make mince pies?" If she does I'll bet they ain't a good as my mars." Little Miss (timidly)—"I like mince pie awful well." Young America—"Wel, now, that's funny. Just look here. (drawing a quarter of a pie out of his jacket pocket) and it's boss, too. Aint my mar good? (carefully stowing it away in his pocket). That boy "is father to the man" who must have his cigars and any other masculine luxury his contemptible selfishness craves, while his poor sickly wife must do the work of two women. ("girls waste more than they earn," he says), and for the want of a little money to purchase a few bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the sovereign remedy for female diseases and weaknesses, she is literally dying by inches—and all because of that masculine selfishness that would not divide the childish luxury with his playmate, and now tacitly refuses his wife the luxury of health.

Pendleton East Oregonian. New mines are being discovered along Snake river, near Salmon Falls, which are very rich. The deeper the better. Nine dollars per day has been made to the man at Payne's ferry, two men with a small bench machine and a few sluice boxes have been averaging $15 to the man ever since they started up last February. The river banks are rich with fine gold

The M. E. church at Salem has determined to enforce that section of the discipline which refers to "imprudent conduct," to-wit: "Cases of neglect of duties of any kind, imprudent conduct, indulging sinful tempers or words, then buying, selling or using intoxicating liquors as a beverage, dancing, playing at games of chance, attending theaters, horse races, circuses, dancing parties, or patronizing dancing schools, or taking such other amusements as are obviously of misleading or questionable moral tendency, or disobedience to the order or discipline of the church."

We have received an account of the teachers' institute held at Roseburg, written in a style of bombast of which every teacher in the land would be ashamed, and out of respect to them we decline to publish it. We give, however, the introductory paragraph: "Roseburg has been electrified lately, by an assemblage of brilliant luminaries from this county and the adjoining and a multitude of lesser lights whose radiance has illuminated Douglas county with a brilliancy hitherto unheard of in the annals of the land; and the name of this assemblage was—a Teacher's Institute." The most exacting person we suppose, could not ask us to give more.

IT IS WELL TO GET CLEAR OF A BAD COUGH OR COLD the first week, but it is safer to rid yourself of it the first forty eight hours—the proper remedy for the purpose being Dr. Jayne's Expectorant.

SOMEHOW OR OTHER

Life has a burden for every man's shoulder
  Some may escape from its trouble and care
Miss it in youth and 'twill come when we're olde
  And fit us as close as the garments we wear

Sorrow comes in to our lives uninvited
  Robbing our hearts of their treasure of song
Lovers grow cold and friendships are slighted
  Yet somehow or other we worry along

Every day toil is an every day blessing
  Though poverty's cottage and crust we may share
Weak is the back on which burdens are pressing
  But stout is the heart that is strengthened by prayer

Somehow or other the pathway grows brighter
  Just when we mourn there were none to befriend
Hope in the heart makes the burden seem lighter
  And somehow or other we get to the end

WINNING THE WIDOW

Oh what a handsome man cried Mrs Hunter and such a charming foreign accent too

Mrs Hunter was a widow—rich childless fair and thirty five—and she made the remark above recorded to Mr Bunting bachelor who had come to pay an afternoon call apropos of the departure of Prof La Fontaine who had according to the etiquette taken his departure on the arrival of Mr Bunting

Don't like to contradict a lady said Mr Bunting but I can't say I agree with you and these foreigners are generally impostors too

Mrs Hunter shook her head coquettishly

She was rather coquettish and rather gushing for her age.

Oh you gentlemen you gentlemen! she said I can't see that you ever do justice to each other"

And then she rang the bell and ordered the servants to bring tea, and pressed bachelor Bunting to stay to partake of it

There was a maiden aunt of eighty in the house to play propriety, and allow her the privilege of having as many bachelors to tea as she chose and Mr Bunting forgot his jealousy, and was once more happy

He was truth to tell, very much in love with the widow, who was his junior by fifteen years

He liked the idea of her living on the interest of her money too

She was a splendid housekeeper and a fine pianist

She was popular and good looking

He intended to offer himself for her acceptance as soon as he felt sure that she would not refuse him

But this dreadful Professor La Fontaine with black eyes as big as saucers and long sidewhiskers—black also as any raven's wing and the advantage of being the widow's junior

This opportunity to make a fool of herself is so irresistible to every widow

It troubled his dreams a good deal—not that he thought him handsome

Oh no!

But still at fifty a man does not desire a rival however he may despise him

"She did not ask him to stay and she did ask me said Mr Bunting and departed after a most delightful evening, during which the maiden aunt, (who was at most as deaf as a post) snored sweetly in her chair

But, alas! on the very next evening his sky was overcast

Professor La Fontaine took the widow to the opera.

He saw them enter the doors of the opera house, and, having followed and secured a seat in a retired portion of the house also noticed that the professor kept his eyes fixed upon the lady's face in the most impressive manner during the whole of the performance and that she now and then even returned his glances

It can't go on,' said Mr Bunting to himself. 'I can't allow it.' She'd regret it all her life I must remonstrate with her No woman likes a coward. Faint heart never won fair lady She'll admire me for speaking out.'

And that very evening Mr Bunting trotted up to the widow's house full of deadly purpose, and with a set speech learned off by heart

The speech he forgot as he crossed the threshold

The purpose abided with him

There were the usual remarks about the weather

The usual chitchat followed, but the widow saw that Mr Bunting was not at his ease

At last with a sort of plunge that a timid bather makes into chilly water he dashed into the subject nearest his heart

'He's a rascal, ma'am, I give you my word'

"Oh, dear! Who is?" cried the widow

"That frogeater,' replied the bachelor Upon my soul, I speak for your own good I am interested in your welfare. Don't allow his visits You don't know a thing about him

Do you allude to Monsieur La Fontaine? asked Mrs Hunter solemnly

I allude to that fellow' said bachelor Bunting Why his very countenance proves him to be a rascal I—I'd enjoy kicking him out so much I——

Sir said the widow if you haven't been drinking I really think you must be mad"

'Ma'am! cried Mr Bunting

'Perhaps, however I should take no notice of such conduct, said Mrs Hunter Perhaps I should treat it with silent contempt.'

'Oh, good gracious,' cried bachelor Bunting "don't treat me with silent contempt It's my affection for you that urges me on I adore you! Have me Accept me Marry me and be mine to cherish and protect from all audacious Frenchmen

The widow's heart was melted

She burst into tears.

"Oh, what shall I say? she sobbed "I thought you merely a friend I—am—I—I—I am engaged to the professor he proposed yesterday evening"

Bachelor Bunting had dropped down upon his knees while making the offer

Now he got up with a sort of groan—not entirely caused by disappointed love for he had the rheumatism

Farewell, false one he said feeling for his hat without looking for it, I leave you forever'

He strode away banging the door after him

The widow cried and then laughed and then cried again

In fact she had a genuine fit of what the maiden aunt called stericks and the chambermaid highstrikes before she was brought to and prevailed to take a glass of wine and something hot and comfortable in the edible line.

After which the thought of her fiance consoled her

Days passed on

Bachelor Bunting did not drown himself or sup cold poison

The wedding day was fixed

The housemaid informed her friend that Mrs Hunter 'kept steady company

The maiden aunt who had no income of her own curried favor by being almost always in a state of apparent coma

The widow was in the seventh heaven of bliss and all went merry as a marriage bell until one evening as the betrothed pair sat before the fire in the polished grate there came a ring at the bell and the girl who answered it soon looked into the parlor to announce the fact that a little girl in the hall would come in

"Oh let her in said Mrs Hunter I'm so fond of the dear children in the neighborhood It's one of them I presume?

But while she was speaking a small but very old looking little girl in a short frock with a tambourine in her hand bounced into the room and throwing herself into the Professor's arms with a strong French accent screamed

"Darling papa have I then found you? How glad mamma will be We thou[illegible] you dead

I am not your papa said the Frenchman, turning pale Are you crazy my d[illegible] little girl?

No no no you are my papa cried the child Do not deny your [illegible] Does she not know you Ah my heart [illegible] tells me true Dear mamma and I have al[illegible] starved but he has never [illegible] [illegible] She plays [illegible] the tambourine We have suffered but now papa will return to us Ah heaven

My gracious! the morals of furriners He'd have married Missus" cried the girl at [illegible]

She tells one black lie Never before have I seen her, belief me, madam screamed the poor Frenchman "Ah mon Dieu, am I dreaming?"

Oh Alphonse cried the widow But there I will be firm My best friends warned me of you Take your hat—go Never enter my presence again Go with your unfortunate child—your poor half starved little girl Go home to your deserted wife Go

Ah madame zeese is falsehoods cried the unfortunate Frenchman losing his temper in his excitement Belief——

Out of my house cried the widow [illegible] open the door Go What an escape I have had

The professor departed

Mrs Hunter threw herself [illegible] chair and burst into tears

After a while she grew more calm and taking a letter from a drawer she perused it

Ah me what deceivers those men are she said as she pensively lay back on the cushions Only to think he could write a letter so full of love and prove such a villain but I am warned in time

And she tore the letter into fragments

The maiden aunt who had not heard a word demanded an explanation

Biddy howled it through her ear trumpet in these words

The scoundrel has ever so many wives and families already playin tambourines for their bread—the rascal!

And in the midst the door bell rang and Mr Bunting walked in with a polite bow

Biddy and the aunt slipped out of the room Mr Bunting approached the widow

I called to apologize he said I was hasty the other day Had I known the gentleman was dear to you I should have restrained my speech I wish you happiness I—

Don't please cried the widow He's worse than you painted him I've found him out I hate him As for me I can never be happy again

Not with your own Bunting? cried the bachelor sitting down beside her

I'm afraid not said the widow

Are you sure? asked Mr Bunting

No not quite said Mrs Hunter

Then marry me my dear and try it Do oh do

Mrs Hunter sobbed and consented

After having a white corded silk made up and trimmed with real lace it was too bad not to figure as a bride after all

She married bachelor Bunting and was very happy

It was well perhaps that she had not the fairy gift of the invisible cap and did not put it on and follow Mr Bunting to a mysterious recess in the rear of a theater whither he took his way after parting from the widow on the night of his engagement

There he met a little girl small but old looking the same indeed who had claimed the Professor as her lost papa and this is what he said to her

"Here is the money I promised you my child, and you acted the thing excellently well I know that by the effect you produced She believes that he's a married man and he can't prove to the contrary I knew you'd be able to act it out when I saw you play the deserted child in the tragedy

Then twenty five pounds were counted out into the little brown hand and bachelor Bunting walked off triumphant

To this day his wife does not know the truth but alludes to poor innocent Professor La Fontaine as that wicked Frenchman

There have been no new or important features in local financial or trade matters developed to day The activity which could be remarked at any time since the present month began has only been of a spasmodic character and the drift of reports still shows a dull condition of trade in nearly all departments The banks and depositories are reported to have considerable amounts of loanable capital, but there is no special inquiry from borrowers at present Rates on loans and discount on good paper are quite as low as at any time for several months past. Wheat buyers are not making much demand upon the local money market on account of the disinclination of holders to sell the cereal and the fact that much of the capital for moving this crop comes from parties outside the state The movement of vessels however is quite lively and the number in port to load will be reduced to half a dozen or so unless augmented by further arrivals

During the few days last past no important changes have occurred in the market for domestic products The latest advices from the Liverpool and San Francisco wheat markets rather tend to discourage speculation and trade has consequently been confined to present wants of buyers The belief is expressed however, that the apparent depression is only temporary The bulk of Oregon's surplus has already been placed and a rise or fall would be less extensively felt now than it would have been earlier in the season Oats are still coming forward rather slowly but the local trade is fairly supplied with a dull demand for shipping and prices are scarcely so readily obtained for the latter purpose but quotations are unchanged Potatoes are in better supply and the tendency of the market is downward Onions are still somewhat scarce and very high Other products unchanged
